CITY SANITARIUM ATTENDANT HELD FOR HOMICIDE IN PATIENT'S CASE

Testimony at Inquest Julius Rathke Beat Alexander Young, 80, and That Attack Was Factor in Death
OTHER COMPLAINTS AGAINST EMPLOYEE
Case Is Fourth in Last 4 1/2 Months in Which Charges Have Been Made of Violence by Attendants.

A City Sanitarium attendant was held for homicide today in an alleged attack that contributed to the death of an aged patient.

This is the fourth case of violence or harmful bludgeoning affecting a patient in the sanitarium, which is the city's institution for the mentally afflicted, within the last four and one-half months. Inquests in two of the cases, which were fatal, failed to fix responsibility. In the other case, two attendants were acquitted last week of an assault charge.

Julius Rathke was the attendant held for homicide today, in the inquest over Alexander Young, 80 years old, who had been a patient in the sanitarium since Oct. 29, 1921. There was testimony that Rathke assaulted Young about 1:20 a. m. March 8, causing the patient's left arm to be broken, which, physicians held, was a contributory cause to Young's death at the sanitarium yesterday.

Records indicate that Young, who lives at 477 Maryland avenue, Rathke, who is about 60 years old, lives in Walnut Park.

Testimony of Beating.
Principal testimony was given by George T. Anguish, attendant in the division in which Rathke has worked. Anguish said:

"I heard a commotion in a short hall about 1:20 a. m. March 8, and saw Rathke push or strike Young, Young fell to the floor beside a little chair. Rathke had spoken angrily to him in German, then Rathke said to him, 'Get up, get up.' I asked him why he didn't help that old man up, and Rathke said, 'He's got to get up himself.' Then he kicked Young. I told him not to kick Young or I'd kick him. He didn't answer, but lifted Young by the collar and put him in the chair. I pushed Rathke away and took care of Young. After that I told Rathke I'd beat him up if I ever got him outside. I saw Rathke abuse Young about three months ago, too. I was taking Young down the hall and Rathke took him away and struck him under the ribs."

Deputy Coroner Dever noticed a white black eye on Rathke and asked Anguish if he was responsible for it. Rathke said he was responsible for it. Anguish said he was responsible for it. Rathke said he was responsible for it. Anguish said he was responsible for it.

$13,243,448 CERTIFIED AS MISSOURI PACIFIC GUARANTEE

Final Payment of $660,448 on This Amount Soon

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday certified to the Secretary of the Treasury that the Missouri Pacific Railroad is entitled to $13,243,448 in full payment of the "guarantee of earnings" given this road for the first six months following relinquishment of Government control of railroads.

Of this sum all but $660,448 has already been paid to the Missouri Pacific and the final payment is to be made soon.

At the local offices of the Missouri Pacific, in the absence from the city of President Baldwin, it was said by other officials that the Missouri Pacific has not accepted the $13,243,448 figure and may appeal for an additional sum of more than $2,000,000. The road claimed this latter sum for under-maintenance of the company's properties during the Government administration of railroads, but the Commerce Commission refused to allow it.

The so-called "guarantee of earnings" law insured the roads a certain fixed income for the first six months after their return to private management. It was asserted by the railroads that the rolling stock and roadbeds had been allowed to deteriorate and unnecessary employees had been added during the period of Government management. The "guarantee of earnings," therefore, was authorized, to put the railroads back on a normal basis.

A Boon to Women

Preserves the health because it conserves energy and prevents excessive fatigue. It keeps the kitchen cool in Summer—because no cooking steam escapes.

No cooking odors can escape into the house, no matter what you cook because the cooking is tightly sealed.

Cooks with one-fourth the fuel formerly used—an aid to the household budget. Pays for itself the first three months used in gas and food saved.

Cooks food more deliciously—natural food flavors are retained and seasonings pressured through the food-stuff. So rapid are our sales that every modern kitchen will soon possess

French Bring $6,500,000 to U. S.
NEW YORK, March 19.—The French liner Rochambeau brought to port today $6,500,000 in gold, $5,000,000 of which was transferred to the Equitable Trust Co. and the remainder to the Federal Reserve Bank.

Many Casualties in Wreck.
MEXICO CITY, March 19.—A large number of casualties are reported in the derailment of a train near the station of Gorrion, midway between Tula and Pachuca, in the State of Hidalgo.

HEBER NATIONS PUTS OFF WASHINGTON TRIP

Labor Commissioner to Wait Until "Protected Beer" Inquiry Is Completed.

State Labor Commissioner Heber Nations has changed his mind about going to Washington to build a fire under Government officials engaged in an inquiry into the "protected beer" traffic in St. Louis. He told the Post-Dispatch here today just before departing for Jefferson City that he would not go to the national capital until after the beer investigation has been completed.

Nations, whose name was brought into public knowledge of the beer inquiry by his brother, Gus O. Nations, Missouri chief of the field forces, prohibition enforcement division, issued a statement last week in which he declared politicians had instigated the investigation and that the whole thing was a political frameup. He announced at that time he was going to Washington to lay several matters before officials there and invited several Government officers connected with the inquiry and a number of old guard Republican politicians, all of whom he named, to meet him there.

Issues Statement.
But he has decided not to go for the present, explaining in a typewritten statement as follows: "In order that there may not be the slightest suggestion of political interference with the investigation of the 'protected beer' report, I have decided that I will not go to Washington until after the present inquiry conducted by Government officials and agents has been completed."

Has 'Important Information.'
"I have important information concerning the official conduct of certain Federal officers which will be turned over to the proper departments at the earliest possible moment, but I believe the matter should wait until the beer probe has been finished. The facts which have come into my possession do not deal, necessarily, with any criminal conduct of officials, but are both serious and important from the standpoint of inviolable department rules, efficiency and decency."

Nations declined to say whether his guns would be turned on David Nolan, chief of the special intelligence unit here directing the beer investigation; L. F. de Hart, prohibition director for Missouri, or some others, or whether his information would be presented to a department head or to the President himself.

Veteran Railroad Man Dies.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DANVILLE, Ill., March 19.—William H. Morg, 65 years old, who had spent 42 years in the service ice of the C. & E. I. Railway, part of it in St. Louis, is dead here.

Looked Like a Goner, but is now strong and well.

In November, 1918, my son had just gotten over the flu and double pneumonia, and it looked as if he would never be a well boy again. His lungs were very weak and he had an awful cough. He had had pneumonia four times. This had taken all of his vitality and left him in a very bad shape.

I saw Milk's Emulsion advertised in the Birmingham News, got a large bottle and gave it to my son. It did me much good that I kept on giving him Milk's Emulsion until he had taken 125 bottles, and now I am proud to tell you that my boy is a well, strong young man, 18 years old, and in excellent health. I give Milk's Emulsion the credit for having saved his life.

"Mrs. J. A. Bradley, 1927 1-2 Ave. D, Birmingham, Ala."

Nature works wonders in rebuilding bodies weakened by disease. It gives the right help. Milk's Emulsion has marked the turning point in thousands of just such cases. Milk's Emulsion restores healthy, natural bowel action; it is a truly corrective medicine, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly purges the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food, and thus build flesh and strength. Milk's Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose stomachs have weakened; it is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved. This is the only solid, emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Wonderful for weak, sickly children. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk's Emulsion today this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c per bottle. The Milk Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Running as an Independent, The Would Carry Enough States to Throt Into House in Which His F Would Hold Balance of Po

This is the third article in the series by Charles Washington correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, who has been following the conditions in the radical farm states of the West. The first article was published in the Post-Dispatch of March 10, 1931, and the second in the Post-Dispatch of March 11, 1931.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MADISON, Wis., March 18.—The La Follette says the word, the great majority of the voters of Wisconsin will follow him into a third-party movement. For in the 100 years of his fighting in Wisconsin, he has "sold" himself to the masses of the people; they are convinced that he is sincerely endeavoring to improve the economic lot of the average man. And he has "sold" them not only his personality but an idea—the idea that the paramount issue before the country always is economic. He has made them a politically conscious people, so that they are not easily diverted from what they conceive to be the main issue.

There is a notable omission in the La Follette platform. Nothing is said about prohibition, though in this State with its large foreign population, one might expect prohibition to be perennial issue. The omission, however, is characteristic of the La Follette method. He has imbued Wisconsin with the thought that the fundamental issue is that of the people against the privileged interests. Consequently, he has been able to hold his following intact against various efforts to split it by the introduction of other questions.

In his fighting he has always been able to choose his own weapons. He is regarded as a "wet" and his record points in that direction, but he gets the vote of "drys" as well as "wets." He cements them all together in support of his progressive economic measures. The achievement of La Follette in this respect is truly remarkable.

He knows of no other state so completely under the sway of one personality. The 1922 primary and election figures tell the story and apparently, by virtue of recent developments in Washington, he is even stronger now than in 1922. In that year, when he was a candidate for re-election to the Senate, he received 362,000 votes in the Republican primary against 129,000 for his opponent. He carried all but two counties. His victory over the Democratic nominee was overwhelming, 1279,000 votes to 78,000.

Will La Follette run for the presidency as a third-party candidate? Undoubtedly he is giving the question of an independent candidacy the most serious consideration. As the cards lie now, he will run. But he has not yet definitely committed himself. Some of his closest political advisers at Madison tell me that the question is still unsettled in his own mind. meantime, his lieutenants here are leaning forward on the assumption that Coolidge will win easily at Cleveland and that La Follette will run as an Independent.

I have detected just the suggestion of a hope that by some device the Republican convention may be stamped for La Follette. The Wisconsin delegates, who in 1929, will stick to him to the end. But not even the most ardent and optimistic follower of La Follette really expects such a thing.

Logic of La Follette. The plan, however, the most feasible, arising under it, is to dampen the La Follette's managers. Their idea of the rather if from close Senator here in the ment could possibly "The Republic certainly name Democrats will somebody like nominated Harding in those circumstances progressive voters ever is, "Nowhere aggressive candidate. HOW LA FOLLETTE BOOSTERS BELIEVE HE WILL CONTROL THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

Running as an Independent, They Say He Would Carry Enough States to Throw Control Into House in Which His Followers Would Hold Balance of Power.

This is the third article in the series by Charles G. Ross, chief Washington correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, who is investigating political conditions in the radical farm states of the Northwest. These states are bulwarks of conservative Republicanism, but are giving up their old political allegiance because of dissatisfaction with Congress' failure to pass suitable farm relief legislation. According to reports reaching Washington, they are turning to the leadership of La Follette and the group of radicals that hold the balance of power in Congress.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ISOLATION ONLY IDLE DREAM, HOWARD SAYS

British Ambassador Expresses Belief America Will Work for European Peace.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 19.—America unquestionably will feel the impulse to work for permanent peace in Europe on which a large measure of her prosperity depends and will not "leave Europe to stew in her own juice," Sir Esme Howard, new Ambassador of Great Britain to the United States, declared at the Pilgrim Society's annual dinner last night at the Waldorf-Astoria. It was his first public address since he has assumed his post at Washington.

The customary Anglo-American nature of the function was given a broader international flavor by the presence among the speakers of Ambassador Jules Jusserand of France and Ambassador Don Juan Riquelme of Spain, while among the hundreds of guests to his address and those by John W. Davis, former American Ambassador to Great Britain and Frank L. Polk, former Undersecretary of State, were citizens of many other European nations.

Appeals for Co-Operation.

Sir Esme prefaced an appeal for co-operation in an effort to remove the seeds of armed international conflict with a graphic reference to the devastation and common weal which, he said, was the aftermath of the World War. Incredible as it might seem, he said, men still were to be found who preferred war to judicial peace.

"An attitude of complete aloofness and lack of interest in the affairs of other white continent cannot be either wholesome or profitable," he said, "and good business for either of the two," the Ambassador declared, turning his attention to America.

"I cannot but believe that America will unquestionably feel the impulse to work in her own way and in her own time, for permanent peace in Europe on which, to put it on new higher grounds, so much of our own prosperity depends," he continued, asserting it was axiomatic that the prosperity of America would be in ratio with the prosperity of all of Europe.

Signs of good will, lacking for many years, Sir Esme said, had appeared on the horizon.

"We in England," he went on, "have long realized that a policy of splendid isolation was not an idle dream and a vain imagining. America, under the administration of President Harding, was not splendidly helpful in many ways and now, under President Coolidge, she is doing her best through the International Commission to help straighten out that tangled skein."

"And, therefore I do not believe that the American people will leave Europe to stew in her own juice," he declared. "I believe that by combining her strength, political common sense with her undoubted idealism she will advance step by step, not indeed committing herself to any definite policy, but just helping as necessity arises until at last confidence and good will will together have laid the sure foundations of an abiding peace."

Abiding Peace Greatest Task.

"Believing as I do in America, and in the American people, I can only say that the greatest task of the world, with the exception of Germany, Japan and Turkey, had either accepted the principle of such treaties or had ratified parts of that kind with the United States."

Mr. Bryan pleaded with the President to give Germany another chance to accept the principle of an investigation treaty. Mr. Bryan was convinced that the Germans did not want war with America, and that they would look upon the suggestions as a loophole and a way out of an embarrassing situation. For even if they had attempted to send instructions to torpedo the Lusitania he could not bring himself to believe that they would repeat such an act when once the effect on American opinion was known in Berlin.

Instruction to Gerard.

President Wilson yielded to Mr. Bryan's persuasive arguments and permitted him to deliver an instruction to Ambassador Gerard, to be sent simultaneously with the Lusitania note, advising the German Government of the willingness of the United States to submit a commission of investigation on the principle of the Bryan treaties.

The instruction to Ambassador Gerard, which has been "supplanted" by a "postscript" never sent from Washington, it was under the circumstances as exciting as the instruction which was to be sent to Ambassador Gerard. It made a worldwide swift passage of time, but the swift passage of time, to some extent robbed the incident of its true importance in the history of the neutral period. The supplementary instruction, which was sent to Ambassador Gerard, reached the State Department about 10 o'clock and was about to be put into code and sent to Berlin.

No one knew about the instruction until the President and the Secretary of State, Mr. Robert Lansing, were in the State Department, and it was not until the effect on the sup-

True Life Story of Woodrow Wilson
by David Lawrence

Here is the twenty-fourth installment of a history of the life of the late President Woodrow Wilson. The writer, David Lawrence, a Washington correspondent who, during his student days at Princeton, was a student under Mr. Wilson, was very close to him during his eight years in the White House and was cognizant of the important phases of Mr. Wilson's career. He tells the story of the great War President frankly and fairly, pointing out his weaknesses as well as his greatness. This history, chapters of which appear in the Post-Dispatch from day to day until it is concluded, will rank as a notable contribution to the varied Wilson biographies that are certain to follow his death.

CHAPTER XXIV.

The Famous Bryan "Postscript"—A Sensational Secret Hitherto Unexplained and the True Cause of the Bryan Resignation.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S dramatic postscript of that entire pre-war period in America, if not, indeed, in Mr. Wilson's first administration, occurred when the first note was sent to Germany announcing the destruction of the Lusitania with more than 100 American lives aboard. Mr. Bryan had not given up hope that moral force could or would prevail. President Wilson sent the note to the Cabinet. It was strong in tone, stating that the Imperial German Government of the United States to omit any word of action, threatening a satisfaction of its demands. The Cabinet approved but in a conference between the Secretary of State, Mr. Bryan, and the President, afterwards, Mr. Bryan was told that the note might be modified. Mr. Bryan thought the note might be modified and he should sign a note which would be a modification of the note. Mr. Bryan reasoned with the President that the American people did not want war, that it was not in keeping with the American doctrine of non-interference, and that almost all the world was engaged in conflict anyway and some nations would keep their head and remain aloof, even if they were surrounded by a mass of races and able to understand the racial complexities of the European conflict.

Mr. Bryan had been negotiating treaties with 30 nations, whereby they would be resolved by a commission of inquiry during the sessions of which the disputants would agree for at least nine months not to engage in hostilities. All the important nations of the world, with the exception of Germany, Japan and Turkey, had either accepted the principle of such treaties or had ratified parts of that kind with the United States.

Mr. Bryan pleaded with the President to give Germany another chance to accept the principle of an investigation treaty. Mr. Bryan was convinced that the Germans did not want war with America, and that they would look upon the suggestions as a loophole and a way out of an embarrassing situation. For even if they had attempted to send instructions to torpedo the Lusitania he could not bring himself to believe that they would repeat such an act when once the effect on American opinion was known in Berlin.

Mirrors of Washington

A report day by day of what politicians of the National Capital are talking about.

By CLINTON W. GILBERT

(Mr. Gilbert is the author of a book called "The Mirrors of Washington," a humorous study of political leaders that caused widespread interest when it was published recently.)

(Copyright, 1924.)

WASHINGTON, March 19.—WITH Senator Bruce, of Maryland, independence of his party amounts almost to a disease. You cannot see any principle in it. La Follette votes against his party because he is a radical, and his party is conservative. Borah votes against his party because he has more sympathy with the average man than his party's leaders in the Senate have. But Bruce seems to vote with his party a certain number of times and then by some sort of inner compulsion he votes against it. It is a sort of cyclic political disorder, regular for a cycle and the time comes around when he must break away. He voted against the election of Senator Smith, Democratic chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee. Some said that he was pro-railroad, and he has the nickname "H and O" Bruce because of a certain railroad that is important in Bruce's State of Maryland. But those who know Bruce best say that he is a disinterested idealist, who is no more likely to be influenced by a railroad than would Senator La Follette himself. That ended that cycle. Then he started a new one by being the only Democrat who voted against the Denby ouster resolution.

Not many men can find a political career out of voting against their party without rhyme or reason, but Bruce did. He was in the Maryland State Senate, which was divided, 14 Democrats to 13 Republicans. Naturally, the Democrats named him for President of the State Senate and so did the Republicans. When the vote was cast Bruce was found not able to vote for the Democratic candidate and equally not able to vote for the Republican candidate. There was a 13-to-13 tie. It was a question then which party would beat the other to elect Bruce President of the Senate. The Democrats named him and the Republicans named him. Bruce was President of the Senate. That started his meteoric career.

It worked as well when it came to electing a Senator from Maryland last time. The Democrats had about equal strength. To nominate either one might split the party. And Bruce characteristically found he could not support either. So, of course, it was Bruce, Senator from Maryland.

As a lawyer, chiefly in public employ, they say he was remarkable for the number of times when he found good and sufficient reason why his client could not do what it wanted to do. I don't know whether he founded a large and lucrative practice on his fondness for the word "can't." But I don't know why not. I know that as a child I resented being told that "can't" never did something or other; I've forgotten what it was, but it made out a very bad case for "can't." As I have grown older I have come to a proper respect for "can't." Can't is one of our very best constitutionalists. Then there is Bruce. He has based a brilliant career on conspicuous constitutional and conscientious "can't's." Some day he will probably be President. You simply can't pass over such a moral force as is in his "can't."

In his possession during that campaign the elements of one of the biggest secrets of the administration and if he had worded his accusation in a slightly different fashion it would have been impossible to deny the existence of a supplementary instruction. On the other hand, since the instruction was not sent to the German Government, Mr. Wilson regarded the affair as of no importance externally. It was of vital importance internally, however, because it was the basic cause a month later of the resignation of Mr. Bryan as Secretary of State.

Conflict of Principle.

What interested Mr. Bryan was not the strong language used in the diplomatic note to Germany, but the actual intention of the American Government. When he discovered that Mr. Wilson was prepared to develop the correspondence with Germany to a climax which might result in war, Mr. Bryan declined to be a party to it. The general public wondered when Mr. Bryan resigned why he declined to sign the second Lusitania note to Germany, which in tone was certainly not as threatening as its predecessor. The truth is Secretary Bryan's readiness to go to war if Germany persisted in her violations of American rights. Mr. Bryan was sincerely convinced that war would be unpopular and he left the Cabinet with the hope of persuading Mr. Wilson through public opinion that a war policy was inadvisable. BONDSMEN QUALIFY FOR 'PROTEST' PARADE AT HERRIN

Glenn Young Cheered by Crowd in Court Where He Appears on Indictments After Shedding His "Two Guns."

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HERRIN, Ill., March 19.—Churchmen and klanmen of Williamson County made holiday yesterday, in merry mood but grim, determined and exultant in the confidence of strength. After parading through the streets of Herrin, they spent the rest of the day "filling" bonds in the City Court in the 99 indictments, against 40 of their number, for offenses alleged to have been committed in the county warfare against bootlegging and other law violations.

At the close of the day $2,133,000 in bond qualifications had been accepted in 45 indictments of the $3,022,000 required to assure the presence of the accused in court on June 9 to answer to charges of assault to kill, assault with a deadly weapon, kidnapping, rioting, false imprisonment, robbery, larceny and falsely assuming office. Adjournment was taken to tomorrow for arrangements could be made for facilitating the work of accepting the bonds.

Yesterday was the day set by Judge Bowen of the City Court for bond-taking and also the day for the parade. The number of persons in line was estimated at 2500, with a numerous sprinkling of women, a few children and three babies in their buggies. It was announced as a "religious protest" against the indictments.

In decorum it was as religious as could have been, with only "the peace" flag and church standards, without noise except that made by the band which led, and without demonstrations of approval or disapproval from the sidewalk spectators.

It ended at the City Hall, on the second floor of which is the City Court, where Judge Bowen was waiting. By prearrangement court-rooms, somewhat limited, were reserved for the "convicts," as the accused were affectionately termed, and the bondsmen. So there was no crush of spectators and Maj. John H. Davis of Carbondale, who arrived yesterday to relieve Maj. John H. Powers of Decatur, personally searched all who entered for weapons, later turning this work over to members of the military band posted with fixed bayonets about the building. The day's searching brought a harvest of three pistols. The men from whom they were taken promised that they had authority to carry them, but were deprived of them with instructions to make a showing of authority later.

Maj. Powers, on hearing the day before of plans for the parade, had called in the Herrin preachers and informed them that he did not want any gunplay or pickfights or hubbub at the courthouse. He said, Philip Gifferty that the purpose was peaceful and was intended only to show how good citizens stood.

Crowd Cheers Young.

The courtroom was fairly filled when S. Glenn Young, two-gun raid leader, entered. At sight of him the crowd cheered. Someone asked him about his guns. He flipped his coat tails, revealing his empty holsters. "Were they taken from you?" he was asked. "No, I left them downstairs," he said.

Several others, as they entered, were cheered. Those who were charged for this honor were Carl Nelson, Exalted Cyclops of the Herrin Klan; Sam Stearns, Exalted Cyclops of the Marion Klan; State Representative Wallace J. Handy of Marion; Arlie Boswell of Marion, attorney for the Klan; John Ford, Chief of Police of Herrin; Abe Hicks, Police Magistrate; and Maj. Davis.

All the cheering was before court convened. When Judge Bowen mounted the bench he requested the crowd to refrain from demonstrations, to facilitate the business in hand.

The 99 indictments were ricked on a table in front of State's Attorney Duty. On the first, charging assault to kill, were eleven names. The roll was called and the 11 answered cheerily to their names and came forward. They tried to look solemn but failed. Some of them grinned broadly. A titter ran through the crowd. Duty announced that the bond required was $4000 for each, making a total of $44,000, but that bondsmen in all cases would have to qualify for twice the stipulated amount.

There was a moment's hesitation over the method of picking the bondsmen. Glenn Young, standing between Duty and Boswell, suggested that the names of the defense of Mr. Wilson's administration were those of William Jennings Bryan during the campaign of 1916. He traveled from one end of the West to the other. His plea was for peace. It was he who emphasized that Woodrow Wilson had kept us out of war. In his heart was a hope that the speeches of the campaign would consist of commitment and that Mr. Wilson would listen no longer to the clamor for war. When war did come, William Jennings Bryan was a loyal supporter of the Government. His record against a policy of involvement that would lead to war is clear. He was the theory of moral force. So long as Mr. Wilson agreed with him the union of the two Democratic leaders was indissoluble, the moment physical force was contemplated by Mr. Wilson, the two men separated. It was a conflict of principle, not of personality, and the parting of two statesmen was truly an affecting one. Each stood by his conviction. (Tomorrow's chapter tells of the marriage of President Wilson to Mrs. Edith Galt.)

Dr. Boos Not a Klansman.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

FOR the past several days, I understand, there have been distributed placards, posters, cards or the like, neither of which I have seen, associating my name with membership in the Ku Klux Klan. These cards, etc., have been displayed in conspicuous places in my neighborhood, and it seems that it is an effort on somebody's part to antagonize me with nonmembers of the Klan. I am certain such action was absolutely unauthorized, and is nothing other than false propaganda, circulated with an injurious intent.

I absolutely deny being a member of the Klan, and if there is any possibility of prosecuting those who are responsible for these cards, etc., I intend to do so, as their origin seems to be established. I will appreciate it very much if you will publish this letter, as your paper affords a wonderful medium by which to get the truth to the greatest number of the people.

The Amendments Pile Up.

YOUR editorial criticism of the people of Missouri for their alleged indifference in the matter of the election held Feb. 26 last is not well taken, and when you charge us "with apathy and ignorance" we resent it.

There are reasons. In the first place, the Legislature made the gross mistake of calling the Constitutional Convention of 83 members and opening the State treasury for them to help themselves to whatever they wanted. The convention should have been for not to exceed 15 members. In fact, that is about what we had of real, earnest, working members; and made an appropriation of not to exceed $25,000 to defray the expenses of the convention. We, the people, were disgusted with the dilatory methods of that convention.

In the second place, having remained with their hands in the public treasury as long as they thought the people would stand for it (and to be just as well as that) they proposed some excellent things they adjourned. But before doing so they nullified all the good they had done by grouping their proposals under 21 heads. Some sections so grouped were entirely unrelated. It seems the idea was to group enough of the good with the bad to form a kind of a sugar coat, as it were, thinking that we, the people, would gulp the whole pill, not knowing that the sugar only served to coat the bitter within. We refused to gulp. As a specific instance of this unwise grouping, take amendments Nos. 14 and 15. Number 14 abolished the present Board of Education. No. 15 creates a new board. Suppose No. 14 had carried and No. 15 lost, as it was. Where would our educational system have been?

In the main, it was this unwise grouping that defeated much of the work of the convention. If we could have voted on each section, instead of these unrelated groups, much of the good work of the convention could have been saved. The convention defeated its own work by attempting to jam down our throats things that we did not think were good for us.

Walter Williams for Governor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SECOND the suggestion of "We Need Him" to draft Dean Walter Williams as candidate for Governor. That is the only way we will get him—by making the call of duty strong enough. Fortunately, indeed, would Missouri be to have such a man as executive.

At the end of this term we would understand what manner of man he is. Then would come the call to higher duty in 1925. For President, Walter Williams Missouri.

NORTHEAST APPROACH FOLLY.

The warning of President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service against further condemnation proceedings in the matter of the northeast approach to the municipal bridge is timely.

The reason given for haste in passing the ordinance providing for the condemnation of a right of way for the new approach in East St. Louis was the brief remaining life of the Federal grant of authority for condemnation. But as President Kinsey points out, that grant has been extended for three years, so that haste is unnecessary.

Continuation of condemnation proceedings may involve the city in heavy costs, without the possibility of advantageous results and with the probability of no results at all. In short, the city may be obligated to pay several hundred thousand dollars, without any gain whatsoever.

The bond issue authorized the expenditure of $1,500,000. The people did not vote a mandate, but an authorization, under the impression that this sum would build the approach. The amount necessary to build it was not determined by a survey or an accurate calculation, but by the rough, unverified estimate of the group of citizens headed by Frank H. Gerhart, who were pressing for the construction of a northeast approach.

Careful estimates, according to President Kinsey, who is the city's final authority on this subject, put the entire cost of condemning the land and constructing the northeast approach at not less than $5,500,000. If the Board of Aldermen persists in proceeding to carry out the plan of building the approach, it will obligate the city not to pay the $1,500,000 authorized by the voters, but more than $5,500,000 which the approach will ultimately cost.

The fact that the voters voted on this subject blindly, without full information, neither obligates nor justifies the city authorities in proceeding under the authorization with a full knowledge that the sum voted will be utterly inadequate to complete the approach. It will be necessary to obtain authorization for a bond issue nearly four times greater than that voted by the people. Before another step is taken, that authorization should be obtained from the people, who would then vote with a complete knowledge of the ultimate cost of the project.

Under the circumstances, it is sheer folly to proceed with the plan without popular authorization, and we do not believe that the people would authorize the greater expenditure. The folly of proceeding is the more manifest in view of the opinion of the City Counselor that the city cannot compel the railroads to use the approach nor use the approach effectively to compel the abolition of the bridge arbitrary within the 100-mile zone. That matter is in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The opposition of the East St. Louis people to the construction of the approach makes its completion problematical, even if ample funds were on hand.

The condemnation ordinance should be repealed. The pending bill providing for repeal should be passed.

LA FOLLETTE'S RAILROAD PLANK.

The platform on which Senator La Follette may become a candidate for the presidency contains a conservation plank fully embodying the lessons learned from the oil investigation. This plank calls for the recovery of the naval oil reserves and other parts of the public domain wrongfully transferred to private interests, for prosecution of those responsible for the transfers, for revision of the water-power act and strict public control and permanent conservation of all the nation's resources, including oil, coal, iron and other ores and timber lands.

The people of the nation are ready for a genuine revival of sound conservation policies. The Fall policy has been a call to arms against plundering and exploitation of the public domain. The plank for Government ownership of the railroads, however, is sharply inconsistent with the lessons of the oil investigation and other manifestations of graft in the present administration's record. Should this vast property, daily handling millions of dollars, be made available to political exploitation, favoritism and corruption? Have we not had enough of government in business as well as "business in government" in Washington in the past three years?

The radical bloc in Congress is taking a narrow position on the railroads generally which appeals more to vindictiveness than to common sense. Regardless of past records the railroads now are laboring under the handicap of increased costs of operation due to the post-war market in labor and materials. They pay enough taxes annually to run an empire. Rates are not based on capitalization but on cost of service. Whatever water may have been in railroad shares is more than balanced by the increased cost of replacement. The railroads, as an interstate public utility, are already under governmental regulation.

OUR RELATIONS WITH MEXICO.

Charles B. Warren will leave Washington in a day or two to assume his duties as American Ambassador to Mexico, and the event, in the judgment of David Lawrence, a special correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, "will mark the beginning of an important era in the relations" between the two countries.

Mr. Warren, of course, is singularly equipped for the place. He was one of the special commissioners who succeeded in negotiating agreements which resulted in Washington's recognition of the Oregon Government. He is persona grata, therefore, not in a perfunctory sense, but in the light of established friendship with President Oregon and with special knowledge of Mexican conditions and the aspirations of the Mexican people.

But since the completion of Mr. Warren's task as special commissioner our State Department has created a precedent which, however expedient, has mischievous possibilities. Our decision to send arms and munitions to Oregon to help him crush the revolution led by Huerta was a departure from our tradition, a violation of one of our tenets, a fundamental mistake. That action may give a brighter glow to the welcome that awaits Ambassador Warren. Temporarily it may simplify his duties. But if in the forthcoming election the Oregon candidate for the presidency should be defeated, the memory of that intervention is pretty sure to rankle in the new administration. It is a mistake, indeed, that may be used as a grievance to aggravate resentment and stir up passion at any time. It is a permanent liability to the security of good relations with Mexico, regardless of the diplomatic skill and personal qualifications of our Ambassadors.

A NEEDED AMENDMENT.

Public opinion, we believe, will indorse the Senate's action in approving a constitutional amendment providing that newly elected Presidents and Congresses shall take office in the January following the election in November and advancing inauguration day from March 4 to the third Monday in January.

The objections to the present arrangement, especially the mid-term Congress, which does not assume office until more than a year after its election, are too familiar to be restated. As exemplified in the Harding administration, it permits a repudiated, or lame-duck, Congress to continue in power and makes possible attempts to enact legislation or adopt policies which the public has condemned. The effort of the Harding administration to put through the rejected ship-subsidy plan in the holdover session of the Sixty-seventh Congress is a case in point.

The adoption of the proposed amendment in no wise affects any fundamental principle of our Government. It has to do with the mechanics of administration. The old arrangement belonged to the stage-coach and steamboat age. With modern transportation facilities there is no reason why the Congress elected in November should not promptly assume its duties, while the issues of the campaign and the pledges of the successful candidates are still fresh in the public mind; there are sound reasons why it should.

NO BROADCASTING MONOPOLY.

Danger that broadcasting may become a monopoly, so far as the scientific apparatus necessary to operate broadcasting stations is concerned, lies in the fact that four leading radio corporations control the patents on this apparatus. These patents in some instances overlap in such a way that the patent office is unable to decide in favor of any of the four concerns claiming to operate under them. In order to work in some kind of harmony, a selling corporation was organized and an agreement made. This gives the owners of the patents the power to control contracts made with users of broadcasting apparatus. It is this power which Secretary Hoover foresees might result in a virtual monopoly. Of course, the power to refuse a contract involves also the power of limiting broadcasting in the interest of the holders of such power.

This is a case where Government control, under suitable legislation, is necessary. In the interest of all concerned, especially the people who in the long run must pay all the costs of broadcasting and will be helped or injured by the manner and method of its control, a way out of the present chaos must be found.

WHEN IS LABOR CAPITAL?

From the New York Telegram.

IT was a dramatic moment for the House of Commons when a Scotch Labor member denounced his own party's flagrant retort to the treasury as "the new capitalism," and supported by an anti-capitalist, marshaled 43 votes against the MacDonald ministry. The common itself was trivial—the Government's denouncement of subsidies for private growers in the Sudan. But the principle stake was the one which, in the opinion of many both in and out of the Labor party, most sharply divides that organization from the Liberals and the Conservatives.

MUSIC

Mme. Jeritza's Art Cool and Impassional, but She Invents Startling New Curtsy.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

AN audience which was socially the most distinguished of the season, and which bulged the Odeon's capacity, last night attended the St. Louis debut of Mme. Jeritza, Bohemian soprano and prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company. For grand operatic purposes, the gathering made acquaintance with a voice which, in candor, is not to be mentioned with Rose Fennell's as a musical instrument, or with Florence Easton and Sigrid Onegin's as a medium of expression. But why cavil? Mme. Jeritza introduced a new style of obedience, almost as arresting in its way as her eminent feat of singing "Vissi d'arte" while reclining on the floor.

After Maximilian Rose and Walter Goldie discharged the ungrateful function of playing late-comers to their seats with violin and piano numbers, there was a well-calculated pause. Then, almost before one knew it, the diva was floating across the stage—a Valkyrie in fur and stature; a lustrious and sensual creature, all pale gold, rose and alabaster. There were pearls at her throat and ears; but she wore not a single ring or bracelet, and her silver dress was of simplest cut.

An Original Curtsy.

Coolly placed and slowly smiling, she stood in the curve of the piano-forte while the welcome of a great city dashed against the footlights. The conventional bows were expected. Instead, with a large and statuesque deliberation, the tall figure began to sink lower and lower, without any bending of the waist, until one knee and the tips of the fingers almost touched the floor. The posture was held, while the blonde head fell and rose. Then, serenely unhurried, the figure ascended again to its full height. It was for all the world like a slow motion picture.

This novelty in the technique of genuflection had the expected effect of sensation; as it was repeated at the end of each aria or group of arias to distract attention from the singing. Those who listened, however, were not long in discovering that the cantatrice carried over his her music the marble-like tranquility and equable tempo of her physical gesture. The impression was strangely dispassionate, impersonal, chill.

An Air of Abstinence.

The opening number was that famous aria, vibrant with fervor, in which Gluck pictures Alcibiades surrendering her life to the cruel divinity of Styx in order to preserve her husband's empire. Mme. Jeritza delivered this lofty outpouring of conjugal devotion as if it were some curious vagary to which she might call attention, but with which she personally had nothing to do.

Three songs in German that were written to portray an ecstasy of emotion, but which were sung almost a complete detachment from the rapture of the music. They were Schumann's rhapsodic "Widmung," Richard Strauss' "Caelestin," and the Lullaby from Erich Korngold's opera, "Die Tote Stadt." The last was a dramatic moment because Mme. Jeritza made her American debut in this opera, and because if memory is accurate, it was the first selection by Vienna's pet young prodigy to figure on a St. Louis program. The air, at first hearing, appeared to have an interesting accompaniment, but commonplace melodic ideas.

"Ella's Dream" as an Extra.

The accompanist now announced that Mme. Jeritza would interpolate "Ella's Traum," from "Lohengrin," as an extra. This is the sort of unearthly beauty and exaltation, in which the dreamful Princess of Brabant, beset by enemies, proclaims that a superhuman champion will come to her rescue. Pictorially, Mme. Jeritza must be a Meisels Kisa on the operatic stage; but the writer is much mistaken if he utters the aria last night conveyed more than a hint of its pure, soaring and triumphant passion.

After the diva had proceeded through Duparc's "Le Manoir de Rosemonde," Debussy's "Beau Soir," and Robert H. Terry's "The Answer," some of us started to wonder: "When will she begin to sing?" The answer came with the first animation of the evening.

Mme. Jeritza was given so diversely as to recall that Mme. Jeritza once had a career in opera.

Last Number the Best.

The following this with a song by Long, Reginald Brewster and other songs against this mighty mauler who has withered them all with his maul. Let's send for that boy.

MAN'S PLAY-LIFE HIS TRUE LIFE.

IT is only for the sake of the free life of material competence and knowledge that man is worth anything. Facts for a creature are only instruments; his life is his true life. On his working when he is attentive to matter, he becomes his own master in his holiday in his sportive passions. Among his must be counted literature and philosophy and so much of love, religion and mysticism as is not an effort to survive materialism. In such enthusiasm there is much action; but what they attend is really action; but what they attend is really action; but what they attend is really action.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an unadulterated creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble, and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung disease and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Dandruff Soon
Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to destroy it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely destroy and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

SACKS REPLIES TO TESTIMONY OF TEXAN

St. Louisan Says He Never Participated in Management of Companies Mentioned.

Denial that he ever participated in the management of the companies mentioned in the Stewart testimony in Washington, but admitted that he was financially interested, is contained in a formal statement given out this afternoon by William Sacks, St. Louis oil operator, Republican politician, promoter and former banker, who was indicted Jan. 17, last, by a Federal grand jury at Indianapolis on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Sacks, in the statement, explains his connection with the United Home Builders and the Hawkins Mortgage Co. It will be recalled that the Indiana indictment of Sacks followed investigation by postoffice inspectors of operations of the Hawkins Mortgage Co. It had been absorbed by the United Home Builders, of which Sacks was a trustee. It was to the United Home Builders that Sacks had sold the Holland Building on Seventh street, between Olive and Pine streets, to which reference was made in testimony at Washington yesterday.

Text of Statement.
The statement by Sacks follows: "Upon my return from the South I find through the testimony of Mr. Maco Stewart I was pulled into the Senatorial investigation."

"Reviewing the reports of his testimony, would state that I do not know Mr. Maco Stewart and have never met him. I heard much about him. His purported statement suggests that I sued him in a libel suit."

"Now, the facts are, he became involved in some controversies with Mr. Webb of Dallas, who was the organizer and president of the United Home Builders, and as a result of this controversy Mr. Webb instituted a suit for libel against Mr. Maco Stewart. This was before I purchased an interest in the United Home Builders. Mr. Maco Stewart is also head of a building and loan association in Texas, and this association has been actively against the common law housing trusts."

At No Time Active.
"At no time was I active in the affairs or the conduct of the United Home Builders Co. Mr. Webb was its original president and in charge of all its operations and continued so throughout until the time of the sale to the Hawkins Mortgage Co."

"The sale of the Holland Building to the United Home Builders was made before I had purchased an interest in the United Home Builders. The figures representing the cost of the building to me have never been correctly stated. In addition to the original purchase price of the building, as it is plainly evident, I had the entire building, outside and inside, remodeled at a considerable cost. At the time I purchased this building St. Louis real estate was at its lowest ebb, almost any office building in St. Louis could have been purchased for its existing encumbrance on it at that time. The sale price of the building at $500,000 I submit will compare favorably with the prevailing price of any office building in the city of St. Louis in the downtown section at this time. I venture the statement that the same building could not be erected today at a price under $750,000. In the meantime rents on office building space has advanced from $1.25 per square foot to between $2.50 and $3.50 per square foot."

"As the public here well understands, my purchase price of an interest in the United Home Builders of America was simply in the nature of an investment, and before purchasing it I had my attorneys go into the general plan to ascertain its legality, and was advised by them that this form of companies was operating under special statutes both in Missouri and Texas and the plan was considered safe and sound."

Tells of Selling Interest.
"Subsequently, the Hawkins Mortgage Co. purchased my interest in the United Home Builders. In this deal, before entering into the contract for the sale of the United Home Builders to the Hawkins Mortgage Co., the Hawkins Mortgage Co. submitted to me a sworn financial statement prepared and certified to by certified public accountants of Indianapolis, which disclosed that they had several million dollars net assets and a surplus and undivided profit account of approximately $40,000."

"I had no relationship with the Hawkins Mortgage Co. or any of its officers before entering into this deal with them nor have I had since. When I sold to the Hawkins Mortgage Co. I received all negotiations with the United Home Builders. The Hawkins Mortgage Co. deal was brought about through an agent of the Hawkins Mortgage Co., whom I had never met before. He submitted a proposition of purchasing my interest in the United Home Builders by the company."

"The indictment at Indianapolis charges me with being in conspiracy with Hawkins in the use of the mails to defraud. In conjunction with a plan on the part of the Hawkins Mortgage Co. offering to the contract holders of the United Home Builders their Hawkins Mortgage Co. stock in exchange for United Home Builders contracts. Connecting me up with this situation was erroneous and I will be able to prove my innocence in the matter, as I at no time was a party to any literature sent out by the Hawkins Mortgage Co. nor did I make a single suggestion to any of the contract holders of the United Home Builders to exchange their contracts for Hawkins Co. stock, nor was I in any way or in any manner associated with the Hawkins Mortgage Co. either before the sale to them of my interest in the United Home Builders nor since, and as it generally known I was at no time active in the management or conduct of the affairs of the United Home Builders, nor did I at any time influence the making of a single loan by them."

nor a party to any of the literature issued by this company.
Discharged as Defendant.
"I was sued with others because of my connection with the United Home Builders in the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis, and the Court after hearing the evidence held that I was not a proper party to the suit, and the action was dismissed as to me. Thereafter, a further proceeding was brought in the United States District Court in St. Louis. Testimony was also taken in this court, and the United States Court again discharged me as a defendant in this action."

"After I purchased an interest in the United Home Builders a national advisory organization was formed for the sole purpose of standardizing contracts, devising a uniformity of methods in conducting their business to meet the requirements of the banking departments, and the Banking Commissioners were invited to attend and make suggestions. I was elected president of this organization and served without compensation. This national organization did not issue or sell any contracts and acted purely in an advisory capacity."

"As a citizen I have always considered it a duty and obligation to take an active part in politics, and the only way I can account for me being singled out is the activity I have shown in political matters coupled with what little prominence I might have achieved in a business way."

Samuel D. Trask, Real Estate Man, in Critical Condition With Skull Fracture.

Samuel D. Trask, 35 years old, a real estate dealer of 4219A Nebraska avenue, who is under prison sentence of two years for embezzlement of $500 from a woman client, is at city hospital in a critical condition from injuries suffered at 7 o'clock last evening, when his automobile collided with a Wellston car on Franklin avenue near Jefferson avenue. He suffered fractures of the skull and right leg, and internal injuries.

Charles Aney, 5008 Kensington avenue, motorman of the Wellston car, which was westbound, said Trask's machine was running east in the west tracks at a rapid rate when collision occurred. In attempting to get out of the path of the street car, Motorman Aney said, Trask swerved his automobile and the rear end crashed into the street car and was wrecked. At the hospital Trask said he did not know whether his machine had hit or been hit by the street car.

Police records show a Samuel D. Trask, a real estate dealer, has been fined three times for speeding and figured in several collisions. Trask's trial for embezzlement followed complaint by Mrs. Flora Rheinlander, 5224 Tennessee avenue, who said he refused to return $288 which she had deposited with him as earnest money in a deal for property at 5819 South Kingshighway. This property later was purchased by Mrs. Rheinlander direct from the owner, without Trask acting in the matter, she said.

Trask testified to retaining the money, but maintained he was entitled to it as a commission on the deal. He admitted pleading guilty in 1916 to petit larceny for which he was sentenced to a year in the Workhouse, part of which was served before he was paroled. His attorney argued that this was an indiscretion of youth and had been lived down. Pending decision on a motion for a new trial, Trask has been at liberty on bond.

DRY ENFORCEMENT INQUIRY ASKED FOR

A. F. of L. Committee and Other Organizations Cite the Griesedieck Confession.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Griesedieck confession case in St. Louis figured prominently in a demand made today for a congressional investigation of the Federal prohibition enforcement unit. The petition, made by the Joint Legislative Committee of the American Federation of Labor, the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, the Constitutional League of Massachusetts and the Moderation League, charged gross official connivance in the administration of the Volstead law, citing alleged acts of corruption throughout the country. The Griesedieck case leading the list.

An effort is being made by the petitioners to have the House Judiciary Committee investigate the prohibition unit. Representative L. C. Dyer of St. Louis, a member of the committee, has been mentioned as one who might introduce the resolution calling for the House investigation.

In the statement to Congress the petitioners said: "A St. Louis brewer, has confessed that a Missouri State official proposed to sell him official 'protection' in the manufacture of unlawful beverages and that he paid the official $15,000 for the delivery of 'protection,' which could have been furnished only by the Federal enforcement department."

Investigation in St. Louis. Federal Judge Paris and United States Marshal Hukriede of St. Louis are investigating charges that a United States Commissioner and a Deputy United States Marshal were holding prisoners accused of prohibition violations until nightfall and charging them fees of $10 for the commissioner and $5 for the Marshal for releasing them on bail—such fees being wholly unwarranted by law.

"A State grand jury at Herrin, Ill., has returned 55 indictments against S. Glenn Young, sent into Williamson County with a commission from Prohibition Commissioner Haynes to enforce prohibition, charging him with unlawfully depositing and imprisoning the Mayor of Herrin and without the least semblance of authority carrying him out of the county and that, during the raids and riots incited by Young, numerous people were robbed, beaten and abused, and in many instances imprisoned secretly without any legal process and wholly without justifiable cause, which ultimately resulted in the calling out of militia to restore order. It was charged that two public officials were killed, one killed, one wounded in these riots and that Young led a mob in an attack on a hospital which was riddled with bullets."

Alleged Prohibition Scandals. The statement gives details of seven alleged prohibition scandals which have received widespread publicity within the past few weeks. Among these were the alleged illegal withdrawal of more than 9000 cases of whisky from a Chicago concentration warehouse; the declaration of the Ohio Attorney-General that the "card agent" system of prohibition is illegal; and the alleged identification by the steamship Orduna's storekeeper of a Federal prohibition agent as a bootlegger to whom members of the crew have been selling liquor for three years.

These scandals, the statement says, show that entire cities and states have been exempt from the operation of the Volstead act, particularly preceding national elections, that vast sums of money have been collected from law violators, and that there has been no major violation of the prohibition law in which tribute was not levied upon the violator either by prohibition enforcement agents or politicians or both.

Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes is the official joint committee of the Federation of Labor is after. This committee charges that Haynes has deliberately undertaken to deceive the American people regarding the success of prohibition enforcement and the efficiency of his agents. Should the House pass a resolution calling for an investigation by the Judiciary committee, the committee would possess all the powers now being used by the Senate investigating committees. Those mentioned in the St. Louis, Herrin, Chicago and other scandals could be subpoenaed and their testimony taken in Washington or elsewhere, in an effort to give publicity to the details of prohibition enforcement.

CHURCH FUND CAMPAIGN ON

Southern Methodists Raising $10,000,000 for Aged Pastors. The first week of solicitation for the $10,000,000 superannuate endowment fund for pastors of the Southern Methodist Church has brought results indicating complete success for the campaign. Dr. Luther E. Todd, secretary of the Board of Finance directing the drive, said today.

The Memphis district has already over-subscribed its quota. Dr. Todd said, and other cities probably will do so within the next week. The St. Louis district, with a minimum quota of $44,442, will greatly exceed that amount, he said. St. John's church alone has raised $24,999.

100 YEARS OF PORTLAND CEMENT
CONCRETE FOR PERMANENCE

Eat Your Cake and Have It Too

You know how quickly most things you buy wear out—how often they have to be replaced.

But think of Cement. Here is a product that is used yet not consumed. It is the basic material in Concrete.

Concrete grows stronger with age. Concrete is fire-safe. Concrete is proof against rust, rot, decay. Concrete endures.

Practically all the Concrete improvements built in the last thirty years are still rendering substantial service. They will continue so to serve for many years to come.

Concrete permanently advances standards of health and sanitation. It continually helps to increase general prosperity.

You yourself ride safely and comfortably over Concrete roads and streets. You derive important benefits from Concrete dams and aqueducts. You are protected against fire in Concrete hospitals, schools, theaters, apartment buildings and homes.

You and yours make use of Concrete every day of your lives—yet you never consume it.

Portland Cement, in the form of Concrete, contradicts the old proverb that "you cannot eat your cake and have it too."

IMPORTANT NOTICE!

To Those Who Are Afflicted With Piles or Any Disease of the Rectum:

Don't neglect yourself any longer. Don't go on paying monthly medicine bills and endure untold suffering. Mr. Apple of Morehouse, Mo., came to me after suffering twenty years, took treatment in my office two weeks and one day, went home sound and well. He, like many others, had been told that an operation at a hospital was the only possible way to obtain a cure, and that a cure was doubtful even at that. Read his letter to me, dated March 6th, five months after I discharged him as cured.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE

No Cutting. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. FREE CONSULTATION AND EXAMINATION AT FREE OFFICE OR BY MAIL. TELL YOUR FRIENDS

A positive, permanent cure guaranteed in every case of Piles, by my gentle, mild methods, employed only by myself, and the result of 27 years' extensive practice in my specialty. The treatment of Piles, Fistula, Fissure, Ulcers, Etc.

Morehouse, Mo., March 6, 1924.

Dear Sir: Referring to the treatment received from you in October, 1923, for a long-standing case of piles of some twenty years, I am glad to inform you that I am perfectly cured, and do not know now that I ever had them. I was bothered with piles for over twenty years, but after you cured me, I am sound and well of them, and feel all right, and am glad of it, and I cannot express to you how glad I am of the service you rendered me. I cannot begin to thank you enough. I think your charges for such treatment are most reasonable. Yours most sincerely,

L. C. Apple

I can do as much for anyone who is afflicted as I did for Mr. Apple. Come now and you will soon enjoy health, happiness and comfort. No more pain, no more medicines to buy, etc.

EFFORT IN STATE FOR UNDERWOOD OF NO AVAIL

Likewise Movement to Solidify the Anti-Reed Sentiment for McAdoo Fails.

DELEGATES LIKELY TO GO UNINSTRUCTED

Program Outlined for Springfield Convention Doesn't Provide for Any Recognition for Reed.

By CURTIS A. BATES

Indications in reports from virtually all the congressional districts of Missouri are that the drive to create sentiment for an endorsement of Oscar W. Underwood in the Missouri Democratic State convention in Springfield April 15 has been a complete failure.

Likewise the effort to solidify the anti-Reed delegates into a cohesive McAdoo organization has failed. The Springfield convention may be expected to send an uninstructed delegation to the New York convention.

The majority of the delegates to Springfield were elected as anti-Reed delegates. Anything except Reed was a matter of minor consideration. It is asserted confidently by the anti-Reed forces, who won a sweeping victory in the county conventions, that the Springfield convention will adopt resolutions scoring Reed and will defeat any effort which may be made to place Reed on the Missouri delegation to the national convention, either as a district delegate or delegate-at-large.

Reed Silent on Plans.

Reed's complete silence on Missouri political affairs since his repudiation and elimination by the county conventions has served to keep his opponents in ignorance of his intentions, but they have their program outlined and they insist they will carry out their plan to refuse Reed any recognition.

A report which has gained circulation within the past few days that before the State convention Reed would publicly approve the candidacy of Underwood has not improved Underwood's chances in Missouri.

The only Reed supporter to openly advocate a fight by Reed at Springfield is Henry S. Priest, who in a statement insisted that the fight at the State convention would be between Reed and McAdoo. Priest asserted that the opposition to Reed was mainly Ku Klux Klan and Anti-Saloon League and that it was guilty of unfair practices.

Others Fought Reed Also.

There probably is not the slightest question that both those organizations fought Reed to the full extent of their influence, but there also is not the slightest doubt that the mass of the Democrats of Missouri, irrespective of whether they were or were not connected with those organizations, fought him.

Whatever may be the Klan or Anti-Saloon League adherences of the Springfield delegates, they are against Reed about three to one, and there is no reason to believe that they will change their attitude before the convention. They were elected, and most of them were, for the one principal purpose of ostracizing Reed, and there is every evidence that they will remain steadfast to that purpose.

While some of the leaders of the anti-Reed movement are in the McAdoo organization they are finding it much more difficult to arouse sentiment for McAdoo than they found it to consolidate the opposition to Reed. This was apparent in the county conventions which almost universally refused to instruct for McAdoo, little more than 5 per cent of the delegates to the State convention having been instructed for him.

No Popular Candidate.

The situation existing throughout the State is that none of the announced or talked-of candidates for the presidential nomination has struck a popular chord, and there is nothing to indicate there will be instructions for any of them.

The Springfield convention undoubtedly will be even more riotous than was the Joplin convention. In 1920 if Reed attempts to have any voice in its proceedings, it Reed does not make any kind of a fight, the convention probably will adopt anti-Reed instructions, and otherwise the individual delegates to the national convention will be free to vote as they desire.

Remarkable Discovery Banishes Gray Hair

A Proved Substitute for the Lost Pigmentation

Original Color Quickly Appears

Science again has scored a triumph in the discovery of a very remarkable liquid known as Kolor-Bak. If you are gray, just apply this liquid to the hair or scalp and your hair will soon take on the actual color it had in the past. Not a trace of grayness will remain.

Kolor-Bak comes in the form of a clean and colorless liquid, containing properties which quickly restore the lost color to the hair and give it renewed vigor. And note that the one preparation is for all colors of hair. No special solution required for each color—no samples of hair required.

You will find also that after using Kolor-Bak the hair has the same shade throughout. It does not appear streaked, faded or "dyed."

Every scientist, every physician, knows that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigments from certain tiny cells (called follicles or papillae) in the scalp, because these cells have become inactive from illness, shock of some kind, scalp disease, dandruff, infection, neglect of the hair, or lack of circulation, etc. But no matter what the cause of the grayness, it is simply amazing to see how it disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. Kolor-Bak is a real substitute for the natural pigmentation.

Kolor-Bak has been proved by hundreds of thousands of people, once gray, now with hair in the original color. Get a bottle today.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of calamine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pimples and pustules blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of calamine powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft, and the pores in the natural condition.

Won't cause diaper rash

Use it for all the clothes that touch your baby's tender skin

Doctors say babies often cry because their diapers scratch from using strong soap

Nothing in the world is as sensitive as a little baby's skin. The least roughness irritates and inflames it. Physicians agree that when a baby cries or is fretful it is often just because his diapers are rough and scratchy from washing with strong soap, or his little hands have shrunk and binds his tender abdomen.

The diaper rash that is the source of such severe suffering to babies is usually traceable to this very cause—washing diapers with harsh soap—soap containing free alkali. Alkali is almost impossible to rinse out. It clings to little garments in a fine white powder that is cruelly irritating to sensitive skins.

How to wash diapers

Soiled diapers should have all solid matter removed immediately and then be put to soak in cold water. If diapers are simply wet place them in a covered pail and let them soak in cold water until you are ready to wash them.

Then whisk two tablespoonsful of Lux into a thick lather in a tub of very hot water. Let diapers soak for a few minutes, then dip them up and down, pressing suds repeatedly through them. If suds die down add more Lux. Rinse in at least three waters. Boil diapers once a week, using a tablespoonful of Lux to a gallon of water. Rinse thoroughly.

Lux won't cause diaper rash. There is no free alkali in it—no harmful ingredient of any kind. It is bland and pure—absolutely safe for all the clothes that touch your baby's tender skin. Use it always for his soft woolen shirts and bands, his diapers and dresses, petticoats and little socks. Get Lux today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

The William Carter Co., makers of baby's woollens, says: "We wish every young mother would wash her baby's shirts and bands in Lux."

Davis and Pruett Regain Best Pitching Form; Entire Staff Shows Improvement Over 1923

Indications Are That "Dixie" and "Shucks" Will Again Be Serviceable Where Last Year They Were Both Practically Useless — Sister Nervous Before Crowds.

By J. Roy Stockton,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBILE, Ala., March 19.—Dixie Davis is rounding into pitching form so rapidly that it would not be surprising to see the Carolina wild man ready to pitch in the opening game of the season. In 1922 it was late in the spring before Davis was available as a regular hurler and last year he did not pitch until late in the summer.

Davis has appeared several times in the practice games and each time he goes to the mound his control is better. That always has been one of his troubles. The other was that he was bothered by a sore arm. This year he is showing more speed each time he works and his control is very pleasing. His arm is standing up well under the hard work.

Yesterday Dixie pitched the first three innings for the regulars against the reserves. He walked the first man and then struck his stride and pitched as he did in 1922 when at his best. A sacrifice and Schliefer's double to left center gave the reserves a run in that first frame, but that was the only hit off Dixie during the three frames.

Dixie Fans Three Men.
Three men face Davis in the second inning and three in the third. In each inning he struck out a man, and after that first batter in the first inning Dixie always had the edge over the batter, that is, the call of balls and strikes was such that he did not have to grove the ball.

Brownie pitching looks better every day. Pruett appears to have struck his stride and the Browns are hopeful that he will be able to perform as effectively as in 1922 when his work was one of the sensational features of the team's fight for the pennant. "Shucks" also tolled three innings against the reserves. He struck out three men in his first inning on the mound and gave only one base on balls. Evans' single to right was the only safety made off the little left-hander.

Lyons Makes Good Impression.
George Lyons finished on the mound for the regulars and while the reserves touched him for four hits and two runs he made a good impression. The two runs were made after two were out, an infield error paving the way for the reserves' rally.

Blacholder, Kolp and Payne pitched against the regulars. Blacholder, who was a green country boy last year, uncertain as to whether a change of pace referred to horses or baseball, pitched out the regulars for three innings, a single by Williams being the only safety made off his delivery.

Kolp was laying the ball over the plate without much stuff on it in the fourth inning and he was pounded hard. Gerber, Slater, Williams and McManus singled in succession and then Jacobson sent a double to center field, the four resulting runs being enough to give the regulars a 4-3 victory over the rookies. Kolp turned the bat over back in order in the two succeeding frames.

Slater Plays Fine Game.
Slater's work in the field was impressive. He snared a particularly high fly with apparent ease. The sun was trying to peek through scurrying clouds, but the sky did not bother George. His several grounders also were pleasing, several nasty hoppers being handled without a slip.

Slater got one single in four trips to the plate, three of his drives being in the infield. George admits that he suffered from stage fright, Sunday, when he appeared in an exhibition game, his first performance before a crowd since the fall of 1922. Every eye was on Slater from start to finish and he plainly was nervous, trying too eagerly to hit. He will have to go through the baptism of fire in front of large crowds before he can gain the confidence he needs to be among the league's best infielders. It is still a question whether he can gain the needed experience between now and the opening of the season.

Pat Collins suffered the first serious casualty of the spring trip when his right thumb was split by a foul tip off Pruett's bat. A surgeon took two stitches in the finger to close the wound and said Pat would have to refrain from throwing for two weeks. The bone was not broken, but the thumb was dislocated by the fast curve thrown by Ray Kolp.

Sylvester Simon, hit in the head by a thrown ball Monday, was put under a doctor's care yesterday, when he complained of dizziness. The ball, thrown by Rego, hit Simon on the back of the head as he was scrambling back to third base. Winward, Volger and Vandier are due to pitch this afternoon in the second exhibition game with Mobile. Tony Rego will start behind the bat.

Tyrrell Works at Second.
Slater is thinking of transforming Tuffy Tyrrell into an infielder because of his hitting ability and a flash he has shown in infield practice. He worked out yesterday at second base. He is a good natural fielder, but he looks like a beginner compared to other infielders on the roster. His hitting, however,

Travis Jackson Is No Davey Bancroft; Giants Are Worried

NEW YORK, March 19.

BETWEEN the lines of training camp masterpieces penned from Saratoga, Pa., has run a rather poignant note to the effect that all is not well with Travis Jackson, the young man John McGraw esteemed so highly that he traded one of the best shortstops in baseball right out of New York at the time McGraw made immediate claims of greatness for Jackson and insisted that while Dave Bancroft was a most worthy individual, his passing from the so-called "million dollar" infield would prove a mere nothing.

It is insisted now, however, that our Mr. McGraw may have committed a fatal error. Jackson is neither hitting nor fielding after the manner of his 1923 performances. In fact, the situation has become such that there is some talk of a general shift in the Giant array.

even demands recognition. Buck Friel, business manager at Tulsa, was in Mobile yesterday looking over the recruits for possible material for his Western League club. He is a brother of Bill Friel, Brownie's business manager.

Walter Friel, vice president of the Browns, will arrive in Mobile Thursday to look over the squad. Friel is one of the original Slater optimists. When all others had given up hope Friel insisted that 1924 would see Slater back at his old position at first base.

BILL MEHLHORN GETS SCORE OF 71 OVER HOT SPRINGS COURSE

By the Associated Press.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 19.—The final round of the spring championship golf tournament scheduled for yesterday, was postponed for the third time when Milton Dargen, unable to appear, his name was taken to the local club. Dargen has been unable to play because of a slight illness and Caullum has declined to claim the championship by default.

"Wild Bill" Mehlhorn of St. Louis yesterday turned in a card of 71. Dargen and Caullum played in a foursome with Art Seaton, St. Louis professional, Louis Cooper Jr., Arkansas champion, and Tom R. Martin, runner-up in the State championship final.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Call for Mr. Londo.

ELSEWHERE on the page will be found the challenges of two wrestlers of high rank demanding a match with Jim Londo. The "demands" in the past have been futile.

It is the right of a promoter to make any matches that he thinks suitable, regardless of the clamor of athletes who would like to cut in on the cake. Nevertheless, in the present instance, we think that both the promoters' interest and the public desire could be served by arranging to satisfy one of the challengers in question, if not both, Martin Plestina preferred.

Give the Fans a Chance.

PLESTINA has been so widely advertised through his insistent efforts to break into a title match with Lewis, and Lewis' predecessors on the champion-ship throne that he ought to be a good box office attraction. Also the public might have some of its skepticism as to the merit of some of our trust wrestlers removed if they would take on this big bear of a man and either show him up or be shown up.

In the old days no good game athlete would stand for a "call" of the kind Plestina and Howard have delivered. Pride in their craft would have impelled them to accept. Now the only consideration is the clink of the coin.

'Show Up' Plestina, Jim.

IN the case of Plestina the box office would not suffer; why should the public? A few days ago Promoter Packs announced a campaign to show up all wrestlers who hurled wild propositions by calling their bluff. Please, Mr. Packs, call Plestina. Let's have this person shown up, now and forever, if he's as poor an excuse as some of his rivals appear to think.

Plestina Offers To Toss Londo Or Forfeit $1000

Chicago Wrestler Says He Will Pin Greek Heavyweight Twice in Two Hours.

Having "called" the head of Joe Stecher, who had agreed to throw both Jim Londo and Renato Gardini in two hours but failed, wrestling Promoter Tom Parks is confronted with another chance to show up what he terms "wild challengers."

Opportunities are afforded in the cases of Mike Howard of Iowa City and of Martin Plestina of Chicago. Plestina's manager, J. C. Marsh, today issued the following "wild" defiance to Jim Londo:

I note in your paper of recent date the challenge issued by Jim Londo to Ed Lewis and Joe Stecher, and that he also states he will meet any other first-class wrestler going to call that bluff and accept that challenge on behalf of $1000. I am willing to come to St. Louis any day and sign articles as mentioned above.

The match is to be a finish, winner take all, two best in three, and in order for Plestina to get a bonus of two hours that he is not to receive a bonus for the match after that. In addition to this, I will present Jim Londo with an extra $1000 should he win one fall from Plestina. I am willing to come to St. Louis any day and sign articles as mentioned above.

Very truly, J. C. MARSH, Manager for Martin Plestina.

Howard Also Challenges.

Besides Plestina, Mike Howard, the widely known wrestling instructor of Iowa University and a man of attainment on the mat, also is seeking a contest with Londo.

His challenge follows: Dear Sir:—I have noticed from time to time through your newspaper that wrestling matches are being made up by very good athletes. I have also noticed that the men used to make up the cards are wrestlers that I have a reasonable chance to defeat.

I am willing to have a match with any wrestler that you will put up for me. I will give you $1000 if I win one fall from you. I will give you $2000 if I win two falls from you. I will give you $3000 if I win three falls from you.

Very truly, J. C. MARSH, Manager for Martin Plestina.

Grubb Wins From Jaby.

E. E. Grubb defeated John Jaby four games out of five in the individual bowling tournament at the Washington alleys yesterday. Grubb totaled 1935, while Jaby had 1902. Grubb had games of 235, 230, 219, 216 and 212. Jaby's best single count was 222.

Amateur teams have no money, however, and the competition for the Amateur cup is at a standstill in the West because of lack of transportation and other expense money.

A fair test of national strength is therefore not possible and a weakening may be sent abroad. Permission to reinforce the final elimination choice of a team with selected amateurs should be given to Thomas W. Cahill, who will be in charge of this team when it is sent to Paris.

Tigers Willing To Play St. L. U.
For Olympic Fund

Offer Is Conditional on Washington's Refusal to Play, Dispatch Says.

Missouri University's basketball team may play the St. Louis University five and its star
Richerson, who is a star and field events at the Olympic fund the second week in April in a news dispatch from Columbia, Mo., today.

According to the dispatch, the athletic authorities at Columbia announced that the entire athletic department was at the posal of the St. Louis Olympic fund, and that the basketball team would be glad to play the University five or any other team, provided Washington University waived its right to play
St. Louis U.

Plan Put Up to Pikers.
Inquiry at the local Olympic fund office stated that Missouri had communicated with the officials, but that nothing could be given out until Washington University could be consulted in the matter.

It was stated that Washington would be asked its position in the matter and be given another opportunity of consenting to the match originally proposed with St. Louis University.

At Washington University, Dea-McCourt of the Athletic Committee stated that the matter had not yet been presented to his attention and that he could not state what Washington's position would be.

In a previous communication to local officials Washington University authorities had decided not to enter into a basketball game with St. Louis University on the ground that its basketball team had broken training. St. Louis University's team went out of training a week before the pikers were planned.

Three-Cornered Hurdle Race
Planned.
McCullough Keeble and Richerson ought to be wonderful adds to the show. Keeble is a high and low hurdler and this year has won four first and finished second and third once. At the Kansas City meet Keeble set a new world record of 6 seconds for the 50-yard event.

Richerson, shotputter and football star, is an all-around athlete and heaves the shot around 45 feet.

A match between Blanchard of Washington, Keeble of Missouri and Dan Kinsey of Illinois has been proposed. Kinsey, like Keeble, is one of the country's greatest hurdlers while Blanchard is close up.

MAMMOTH CASING FOR HYDRAULIC TURBINE

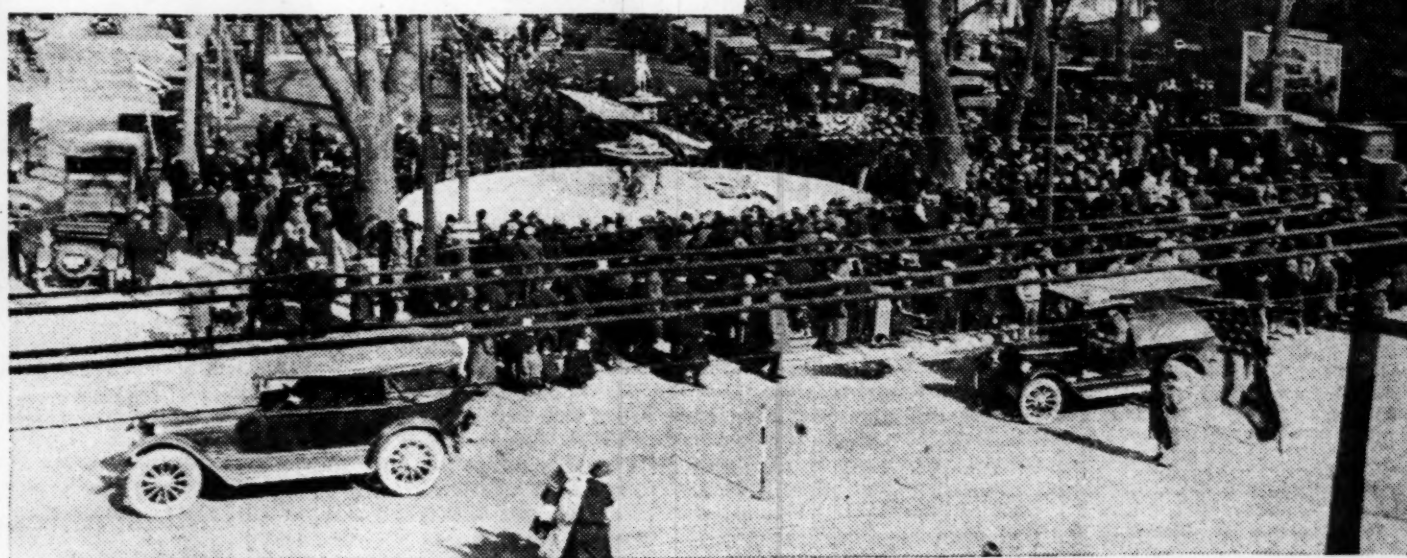

This gigantic plate steel—circular section—spiral casing, 20 feet in diameter, tapering in thickness to one-half an inch, is the first unit of twelve built for the Niagara Falls Power Co. The speed ring and the hydraulic turbine runner are placed within and below this casing when the entire unit is in its operating position.

ROYAL PRINCESS DOES HER SHOPPING

Times have indeed changed in Japan from the period when the people were not even allowed to look upon royalty, to the present time when both meet on the same plane. In this picture Princess Nashimoto is shown doing her own shopping in the Shirokiya Dry Good store in Tokio.

THE REVELATIONS OF A PAID COMPANION

By JANE PHELPS

CHAPTER XXXVII.

A HEART TO HEART TALK WITH MRS. ELLWOOD.

"NOW I'll go back and attend to him," Guy said as he opened the door for me.

"Please Guy," I laid my hand on his arm. "You will annoy me very much if you have anything more to say to him. I never want to see or hear of him again. He is a poor, common sort of a fellow and doesn't realize his presumption."

"I'll soon make him!" Guy jerked away just as the nurse appeared in the hall with a message from his mother. She had heard his voice, wanted to see him.

"You must go to her, Guy," I said, thankful for the interruption. I could not let Guy meet Jim Bond. I dared not think what the result might be if he did.

Sulkily Guy followed the nurse, while I hurried to lay my hat off, then flew down the stairs ready to intercept him, should he make an attempt to leave the house.

Oh, why had Bond appeared to spoil my peaceful life? I had tried so hard not to let anything disturb the faith my employers had in me, the trust I felt I really deserved. I waited for some time but Guy did not appear, and feeling that Jim Bond would be surely gone I returned to my room.

But I was terribly upset. Try as hard as I would to look at the affair sensibly, Bond's remark to Barton Ellwood came back to me with all its sinister meaning. He had declared I was his sweetheart, had said it in such a way as to almost, if not quite, carry conviction. Had Guy heard it nothing could have stopped him from fighting Bond. If Barton repeated it to Guy, the result would be the same—unless Bond had left the place. His last words had been threatening ones, but what had he to gain by threats? I had told him as plainly as I could speak that I wanted nothing to do with him, nothing of his money—my aunt's money.

I was still brooding over the affair when Mrs. Ellwood's bell rang. I went to her at once. For the first time I was glad she couldn't see my face, search my eyes, as she had a habit of doing before her sight was so nearly gone. She was unaccountably intuitive, and I tried to keep my voice bright and cheery, fearing she would question me.

"Guy tells me you had a call from a man who lives in Los Angeles," she said.

"Yes, the one I told you of, Mrs. Ellwood, the man to whom my aunt left everything she had."

"Do you mind telling me why he came?"

No—I laughed nervously.

"It isn't anything I am proud of. He came to ask me to marry him. The acreage my aunt left has made him a rich man. I imagine he thought he would save his conscience by asking me to share it with him."

"And your answer?"

"Was most emphatically, no!" I returned.

"Yet you say he is rich—you aren't mercenary, Rita."

"One would have to be terribly so to marry Jim Bond. He hasn't improved, perhaps more swaggering than when I saw him. I told him plainly I wanted nothing to do with him or his money."

I wished the subject would be dropped. I couldn't quite understand Mrs. Ellwood's seeming interest in it. I wondered what Guy had told her—how much?

"I should hate to have you leave me, Rita," she said after a silence.

"Unless you send me away I never shall go as long as you need me. I replied softly, smoothing the white hand that lay on the coverlet.

"I don't think it will be long—now. I suffer a good deal, and haven't the strength to go on—much longer. You are like one of us now, and it would be hard, very hard to lose you."

I reiterated my promise, then sat beside her until the nurse came in to relieve me. I did not read but talked quietly of Mollie, Guy, her husband, her love for them all, and their unvarying kindness to her.

"It is hardest on Mr. Ellwood," she said.

"Try and make up to him as far as you can for the cloud my illness has cast over him."

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By WANDA BARTON

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

One of Our Birthrights—Privacy.

THE gift of privacy is one of our most valuable birthrights, but unfortunately it is one of the things in family life that seem to be the least considered. But parents should always bear in mind that unless they recognize their children's desire to be alone at times, they cannot expect children to respect their wishes in this respect.

Privacy is a necessity to everyone. We must have it at least some time during each day in order to grow mentally and to think our own thoughts. Busy mothers who often long for a little time to themselves to think out their various problems never seem to arrange for the time. Few seize a few moments and insist that they be undisturbed, although it is their privilege to do so.

Wherever possible, every child should have a bedroom before he reaches the age of 8. He should be taught to take care of his room and make it attractive, using and showing his own taste in doing so. Then, when the child closes his door it is very easy to knock, thus respecting his rights as we wish ours respected. Children have their thoughts, their ideals, and their ambitions and only in privacy when the spirit moves them can these be worked out.

If the family have unexpected visitors to entertain it is an old custom to make children give up their room. We all know how uncomfortable and disconcerting it is to be routed out in this manner, to wander about with your intimate belongings under your arm waiting for folks to go to bed so you can camp on the parlor couch and spend most of the night rescuing the bed clothes from the floor. In town over-night guests are practically an impossibility in small living quarters, but in the country friends sometimes are inclined to think they may descend upon you at their convenience. They may think that Bobby or Sally does not mind giving up his or her room for a few days. But Bobby and Sally do mind and unless there is some special reason for it they should not be asked to make this sacrifice.

A woman once said that she never knew how attractive her place was until cherry season, because her friends always appeared then with baskets and helped themselves. She was forced to put a sign up saying that the fruit was "for sale" at the general market price and a number of the friends melted away. Some tried it out to see if she meant it, but the real friends paid, and were glad to do so, for the fresh fruit. So if we have no free beds we soon learn who the real friends are, for they will insist upon being put up in any old place just to have a little visit with us.

While we are on the subject of privacy, let us speak of our young people's mail. In many families if a youngster gets a letter the whole family want to know all about it. If the child is out, a parent will even open it, pass it around among the other members of the family and thus violate one of the first laws of privacy. If a parent has not gained the confidence of his child, this is a poor means of getting it. If, however, their rights are respected, no doubt the letter will be read to those interested, or at least be talked over with mother. Young people appreciate consideration, though they do not always speak of it at the time.

If, for instance, a child has a de-

THE VACUUM CLEANER

By Hannah Wing

A Recognized Authority on Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

PERHAPS you don't use your electric vacuum cleaner as much as you should for fear it may wear your rugs. Perhaps your cleaner really isn't working as well as it should and possibly that is because you haven't given it the care it deserves—possibly because it never occurred to you that it should have care.

A good vacuum cleaner actually lengthens the life of a rug by removing embedded sand and grit which cuts and wears out the fiber.

Some cleaners clean by suction alone. These have no brush attachment and a carpet sweeper is often for supplementary cleaning. Sometimes a brush is attached outside the nozzle but this increases the friction and makes the machine harder to push across the floor and also prevent it from cleaning close to objects and wall. These machines have unusually strong suction and the brush attachment isn't matter to worry about.

Other machines have a brush in the nozzle which rotates when the machine is moved or remains stationary and acts like a comb. In other machines the brush is driven and rotates over the floor by the same motor that produces the suction. These machines clean both by beating and sweeping with the brush and suction.

If your cleaner has a brush, the threads and accumulated fuzz and dirt must be taken out of it occasionally if it is to do good work. Neglect of the brush may be an excuse for inefficiency on the part of the cleaner. Nearly all cleaners have a nozzle adjustment. If the cleaner seems to have poor suction perhaps the nozzle is set too high above the floor; if it is too low, it may choke the suction. The nozzle should be so adjusted that the suction, like a good chimney, "draws well."

If you are buying a machine, look at the length of the nozzle; other things being equal, the longer the nozzle the less trips you have to make across the floor. A lighter machine is more easily carried up and down stairs and so weight is sometimes a factor. The wheels should be so located that they are not likely to bump into the furniture or the baseboards.

The quality of the dust bag is also important. It must not leak; dust or dirt must allow a free passage of air for suction. Failure to keep the dust bag clean is often a cause of poor suction. The bag should not be shaken so vigorously as to strain the weave or injure the "filtering" nor should pins or tacks be drawn into the bag to cause it to leak. A bag that has been injured may be replaced by a new one. Metal objects drawn into the sweeper may injure the blades of the fan and cause it to do poor work.

Proper oiling is essential; too much oil carelessly applied may cause as much trouble with the motor as too little.

Contrasting panels of figured design are seen on straight one-piece dresses and ribbed sections that appear to be pleated panels are also noted. Brilliant embroideries in Chinese patterns and three or four shades of a color used in harmonious accord on a single dress give a most novel decorative turn to these newest knitted frocks.

There must be many original minds at work creating knitted things, for never before have they shown so much inventiveness and novelty. Most girls have discovered the comfort and youthful becomingness of a knitted dress, and with the smart new designs tempting others to wear them knitted dresses give promise of enjoying an extensive vogue.

LITTLE ECONOMIES.

Carrots and turnips that have become shriveled need not be discarded. They will do nicely for flavoring soups and stews.

To double the lasting qualities of shoes melt two parts of tallow with one of common resin and apply this mixture hot to the soles of the shoes. Put on as much as the soles will absorb.

When ironing around centerpieces, dollies or luncheonettes lay the linen so the threads run in the same direction as the ironing board. The iron will then, naturally, move parallel with the warp of the fabric. If the linen is ironed diagonally it will wear out more quickly. Place a heavy bath towel or thick flannel under the linen piece before ironing.

Knitted Frocks Find New Favor

KNITTED DRESS IN TAN AND BROWN TONES. IT IS PRACTICAL, YET STYLE HAS NOT BEEN OVERLOOKED.

By FLORENCE CLARK.

NOW that clothes have assumed such a boyish trend, knitted dresses with their plain lines have gained a new hold on popular fancy. There are many stunning new designs that meet the demand for the youthfully masculine type of frocks, and incidentally introduce considerable novelty into the make-up of such costumes.

Opportunities for Color.

Knitted things give color a splendid opportunity to disport itself, and this season when color is so tremendously important the combination of the two is a timely one. Mexico brown and corn yellow knitted into a figured pattern is an effective combination. Another, of powder blue plaided in a darker tone of blue, is a charming contrast of these two popular shades.

girls to hesitate when it comes to buying one. The better kind keep their shape if they are properly cared for. They should always be folded when they are put away. Hanging is disastrous, and to throw a dress carelessly on a chair overnight is quite enough to start it on the downward path. Above all, never experiment with its cleaning. Someone may tell you of the wonderful success obtained by a home process of cleaning, but it would seem that some telling point is often left out of the directions, because one hears of so many failures. Unless you are sure, it is better to send a dress to a dry cleaner. A good dress or suit is worth it.

The picture shows a practical dress of tan and brown wool and fiber silk—brown for the sleeves and collar and tan on a brown background for the body of the dress. The bottom of the skirt, which does not show in the picture,

The shingle bob, which is becoming to well-shaped heads, is a hard thing to decorate a la evening coiffure. One shingle bob headband is a wreath of shining pale green leaves worn low on the forehead, which fastens with ornamental pins on each side where the bob ends and the shingle begins.

Alpaca is among the foremost fabrics just now in Paris. Though today it may be had in any number of colors, as well as in stripes and plaids, the black, perhaps with a small check, seems to be most favored.

There appears to be an outbreak of little lace frills. They adorn frocks, hats and the lighter capes in London. There is an epidemic of them on lingerie, and the sleeveless evening gown sometimes has a detached lace frill around the lower arm.

The ermine won't short itself at all this season. Short coats of ermine are popular in London as well as much ermine trimming—but while white is seen, the new shades are ermine dyed a cocoa or beige.

Philosophical Phrasings

In a boundless universe is boundless better, boundless worse.

The old age of an eagle is as good as the youth of a sparrow.

The procrastinating man is ever struggling with ruin.

Beauty provoketh thieves sooner than gold.

How bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another man's eyes.

New Knitted Tailored Suits.

Then there are knitted suits made exactly like the new tailleur. These are closely knitted of crisp mohair yarn and conventional enough to be worn for any occasion when a suit would be permissible. This kind of suit has its notched collar and edges bound with silk braid and a small diagonal pocket covered by a braid bound flap. In a mixture of mohair and fiber silk there is a springy, lively quality and a lustrous sheen to the surface that is very attractive. Another unusual surface is seen when the boucle stitch is used. You may have read about boucle in the advertisements and wondered what it meant. It is a sort of looped stitch which gives a turkish towel effect to the surface. Boucle is making some of the smartest outfits.

Of trimmings for knitted dresses there are very few when you come right down to it. Perhaps there will be a row of buttons down one side of a skirt or a smoked pearl buckle holding a belt together, but that is about the extent to which trimmings go.

One exclusive model of light weight, silver gray wool had pointed trimmings of gray suede applied to it and several shiny silver buttons at the side closing of the blouse. Such trimmings, however, are seldom seen. There is novelty in the knitting and placing of contrasting color rather than in trimming. Any other fabric introduced on a knitted dress seems like an uninvited guest.

The fear that a knitted dress will stretch out of shape causes many

Fashion Frills

The most springlike of wrist bags is a delectable affair, round as a bouquet, and covered thickly with little silk flowers. These are in various springtime colors.

Not to be outdone by bathing suits, the bathing hosiery has burst forth in a Vesuvius of color. It seems stockings are to be worn on the beach this year—stockings in awning stripes, with fish and shells doing duty as clerks.

Umbrellas for the showery spring days in Paris are studiously artistic. This means not only bright colors and queer designs, but also an incredibly stubborn handle and a carelessly bulky way of folding them.

The shingle bob, which is becoming to well-shaped heads, is a hard thing to decorate a la evening coiffure. One shingle bob headband is a wreath of shining pale green leaves worn low on the forehead, which fastens with ornamental pins on each side where the bob ends and the shingle begins.

DELICIOUS CUSTARD.

Make a smooth boiled custard of one quart of milk, two even tablespoons of cornstarch wet in a little of the milk, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, a rounded teaspoonful of butter and four heaping tablespoons of sugar. Heat the milk, except that reserved to wet the cornstarch, in a double boiler or on an asbestos stove mat. Add the cornstarch and lastly the eggs and sugar beaten together. Stir rapidly, then let it cook a few minutes, watching carefully and stirring almost constantly. When it just thickens remove from the fire and flavor with vanilla and one drop of bitter almond. Cool. When ready to serve put nice canned pineapple in cups or small dishes, place some of the custard over each, and top whipped cream on top. Canned peaches, strawberries, or red raspberries can be used in place of the pineapple.

MARRIAGE WOMAN

By HOWLAND

PLEASE don't tell me that danger—but you never can tell!

If it came to a woman to the Presidential Chair and going to the any sane woman would cry: "Turn on the gas! Pass the hemlock!"

Even the domestic scene a pleasant alternative, a sweet relaxation, but

The very thing that keeps a woman from getting married is enough to make any man run for cover.

Pictures of the man and number eight shoes, with a rolling-pin in your hand, are exposed.

Revealing "old neighbors, who 'knew you WHEN"—"Up!"

And then the White House—if you ever DID get there, alas—opportunity to "blame it all on a woman!"

No matter what they could say "a WOMAN drove them to it" or "tempted" them.

Even a Hebe for everything, from the bad weather to his WHAT would they do to a woman?

No, thank the "cloche" is not in the ring!

It's bad enough to be a President. But to be a nerve in her body could stand it a while!

In Friday's Post you wrote a line about a well-known boxer; And now the privilege is mine. Your written work to knock, sir. The Gibbons boys may look alike, but use a separate "nom."

And what you said of brother Mike, refers to brother Tom.

"THANK you, kindly, sir," he said, "My memory was tricky. The way the item should have read was 'Tom' instead of 'Micky'."

SLIM PICKINS.

It seems that the Sheriff played the star part in the St. Louis Grand Opera company. But his star wasn't in the ascendant. His execution was all right, but his technical was faulty.

Between the billboards and the board bills the opera company had pretty tough sledding.

But never let it be inferred that the St. Louis G. O. C. is discouraged. After incorporating under the laws of Missouri as an educational institution they are going to show us that the savage breast can be soothed whether or not.

NOT THE WORDS OF A SLACKER.

There shall follow now in daily sequence, a brief series of jokes all dealing, curiously enough, with the general subject of intoxication. Perhaps, if you don't like the first one, which appears here today, the second one, coming tomorrow, or the third one, may find more favor in your eyes.

Here is our initial offering: The scene is an English public house, or by the terms of phraseology no longer used in our fair land, a saloon. The early closing law, first put into effect as a war measure and now urged as a permanent step, is the topic under discussion.

Most of those present are opposed to any further curtailment of their liberties. But a sound counter-argument is offered by a red-faced, hoarse-voiced gentleman who puts his emptied beer glass down and says: "Well, wot I sez is this: If a bloke ain't drunk by 'alf past ten he ain't tryin'!"

DEAD PATIENT OF CITY SANITARIUM ONCE PROMINENT MISSOURI LAWYER

Alexander Young Was Partner in Legal Practice of Two Governors and a Lieutenant-Governor.

WIFE AND SOME OLD FRIENDS AT FUNERAL

Beating by Attendant at City Institution Declared to Have Been Factor in His Death.

Alexander Young, who died in the City Sanitarium Monday at the age of 59, following alleged brutality of an attendant who has been charged by the Coroner with homicide, once was a lawyer of prominence in the city and State. He was the law partner of two Governors and a Lieutenant-Governor.

Today he was buried in a snow-covered lot in Calvary Cemetery, with only his widow and several old friends present. Funeral services were conducted at an undertaking establishment at 4449 Olive street by the Rev. John W. MacFar of Second Presbyterian Church. Long years of active work in the courts had dulled Young's faculties, and in October, 1921, he was taken to the sanitarium, because his wife felt he could receive the best care there. She paid $20 a month for his board from what remained of the estate he had created by his work. But, according to testimony at the inquest yesterday, one attendant failed to realize the trust imposed in him. This man, it was declared, knocked Young down early March 8, and the patient's left arm was broken. The injury was a contributory cause of his death.

Alexander Young's Career.

Young was born in Bath County, Northern Kentucky, in 1845, when life there retained its pioneering aspect. He went North for his education—two years in Illinois College, Jacksonville, and a liberal course at the University of Missouri, shaped with a view to entering the legal profession, one of the highest ambitions of young men of the period. He taught school for three years, then went to St. Joseph, Mo., where he "read law" with former Judge Silas Woodson. Young was admitted to the bar in 1872 and the law firm of Woodson, Vineyard & Young was formed. It was broken when Judge Woodson was elected Governor in 1872. Young was elected to the old position of "attorney" of Buchanan County in 1868, and the next year was made Prosecuting Attorney, a position he held until 1874, when he moved to St. Louis. It was his last political office, but he was always active in Democratic politics and proud of the fact that habitually he "voted 'er straight'."

"Jeff" Chandler, a lawyer and Democratic politician of considerable note, came here with him and they were law partners for five years. Then Young entered partnership with H. Graef Brown, who had preceded Woodson as Governor of Missouri. Their office was in a converted residence at Sixth and Olive streets, where the Carleton Building now stands.

As far as is known, F. H. Bacon, Fatted Home Building, is now the sole survivor of a group of attorneys who used that old dwelling. There are few lawyers living who practiced at the time of Young's greatest activity; the Governors with whom he worked are gone, too.

Lawyer in Insurance Case.

In the 19's a case of importance in which Young was counsel for the State Insurance Department was the prosecution of violators of insurance laws.

Young married Miss Mary E. Smith, daughter of a Northwest Missouri physician. They had one daughter, who was educated abroad, but who died years ago. Mrs. Young now lives at 4455 Pumphrey avenue.

After Gov. Brown died at Kirkwood in 1895, Young became a partner of the late Charles P. Johnson, who had been Lieutenant-Governor under Woodson. Johnson was renowned as a legal defender of criminals and a vigorous civil cases for the firm. Beyond that he did not specialize, save that he won many damage suits.

"First Nighter" at Theaters. There was a theatrical coloring to Young's career. He had a reputation as a "first-nighter," dating from the palmy days of old St. Louis.

Spring

Fall of Eight Hours Railways at Work, Clear.

The heaviest winter today ushering in of spring.

It was a slice white that filled the air, covered street car windows. It made beclouding drizzle. Streets and sidewalks with slush, for most like rain or it melted.
